Racial and Ethnic Data Comparison

A comparison of the racial and ethnic data of those that apply for meal benefits is required to be compared to the racial and ethnic data of your community. The intent of the comparison is to determine if there are any underrepresented groups in regard to who is applying for meal benefits. If it is determined that there is an ethnic or racial group that is not applying for meal benefits, the organization should determine if any additional outreach should be conducted to ensure that group is aware of how to apply and/or participate in the U.S. Department of Agriculture Child Nutrition Programs. For example, through a comparison of the data the organization may determine that the application and/or public notification needs to be provided in another language. If an organization has internal racial and ethnic data specific to all the children/students enrolled in your facility, it is recommended that you compare that internal data to the racial and ethnic data of households that apply for the meal programs. If you do not collect racial and ethnic data of all children/households enrolled (for example if you are an open summer program) then we would recommend using the following data in order to complete your comparison. Documentation of this data comparison should be maintained for 3 years plus the current. Civil Rights training is required on an annual basis for all frontline staff. Please visit our website at <https://www.isbe.net/Pages/Nutrition-and-Wellness-Civil-Rights-Compliance-and-Enforcement.aspx> for more information and training resources.
